He beat the son of Uncas easily, and naturally some explanation of the beating distance of the continued white Demonio. This is a very easy matter. White-head rode Blitzen and Martin piloted Bel Demonio.

There you have the case in a nutshell. It was an experienced jockey against a stable boy. Martin fooled the inexperienced White-head and won a clever race when he should have been beaten a length. Bel Demonio cut the running to the stretch. Blitzen then out the running to the stretch.
